ABOUT THE SEMINAR

Sustainable Infrastructures influence our well-being as well as day-to-day lives. The infrastructures, which are being building today, will shape our lives tomorrow. The complex and diverse nature of the impacts due to weather extremes on civil infrastructures can be seen in our roadways, railways, bridges, flyovers, harbours, buildings etc. Extreme summer temperatures, flash floods, and rising numbers of freeze-thaw cycles pose challenges for civil infrastructures and can endanger public safety. Thus, civil infrastructures require constant attention, maintenance, and upgrading. Such improvements and developments would obviously benefit from technical seminars, symposiums, conferences etc. which provide a platform for discussion on various issues of sustainable engineering materials and designs. Thus, the proposed two days seminar on "Sustainable Infrastructures" is planned to create awareness among the civil engineering students as well as practicing engineers to incorporate sustainability principles into their routine practices to meet the human needs for natural resources, industrial products, energy, food, transportation, shelter, and effective waste and material management while conserving and protecting environmental quality and the natural resource base, which are essential for future development. The presentations shall be delivered by the eminent faculty members from reputed institutions as well as experts from industries.
